Intracellular Na+ channels were identified in a subpopulation of interstitial cells in the mammalian vas deferens by ion substitution and voltage clamp techniques. The threshold potential for cellular electrogenic responses was -22 mV. The non-inactivating Na+ currents were blocked by 0.1 mM TEA and 0.5 mM manganese (30 and 300 microM, respectively). The mean inactivation time constant was 29 ms and was unaffected by 0.1 mM La3+. The mean tetrodotoxin-sensitive fast inactivation time constant was 28.3 +/- 10.9 ms (n = 6) with a residual current of -0.36 +/- 0.22 nA. After cellular dialysis, the current decayed as a single exponential with a time constant of 3.8 to 4.3 s. The single channel conductance was 28 +/- 2 pS. The fractional availability of open channels was 0.33 +/- 0.07 (n = 8) at -110 mV. The data suggests that Na+ channels with fast inactivation properties are present in interstitial cells of the mammalian vas deferens.Unisex A couple of months ago, I bought a

The Sims 3 Ultimate Collection repack Mr DJ. About The Author:Facilitation of an extrarenal clearance pathway in gerbils following adrenalectomy. The results of a prior experiment demonstrated that gerbils have a non-arginine excretory pathway for the renal clearance of extrarenal drugs, which is not used by the rats. The present experiments were conducted to further characterize this pathway. [14C]Pagothenate (5 micromol/kg), a labeled vitamin B6 analog, was iv administered to sham-adrenalectomized gerbils and to those that had undergone adrenalectomy 2-4 weeks prior. Plasma and kidney levels were determined at 30 min, 3 hr, and 5 hr following drug administration. The concentration of radiolabel in the liver was also measured 5 hr postinjection. The plasma concentration of [14C]Pagothenate decreased significantly (p
